CIMAM – International Committee of ICOM for Museums and Collections of Modern Art

CIMAM is one of the most relevant international forums of professional character for the discussion of philosophical, ethical and practical issues concerning the collection and exhibition of twentieth and twenty-first century art.

Composed essentially of the directors and curators of modern and contemporary art institutions, CIMAM achieves its major objectives through the exchange of scientific information and cooperation between museums and between professional visual arts workers, at an international level; the advance of knowledge and understanding of the nature, functions and roles of contemporary art institutions as instruments of social and cultural growth; the development of professional standards; and the identification and effective response to the future needs and issues faced by institutions and the profession.

HOW IS CIMAM RUN
Run by an international board of elected volunteers of museum directors and curators, CIMAM is based on a transparent and democratic system of governance so as to encourage professional criticism and self-criticism. At its centre lays the uncompromising belief that museums of modern and contemporary art, public galleries, kunsthalls and other related institutions have the potential to play an irreplaceable and vital role at the heart of contemporary life.

CIMAM’s programs and activities are run by an executive team based in Barcelona, Spain. The team is composed by an executive director and a program coordinator.

HOW IS CIMAM FINANCED
CIMAM levies an affiliation charge to its members that covers part of administrative costs as well as the production of newsletters, publications, conferences, special grants, working groups etc. CIMAM relies on a variety of funding sources for its activities – fees for services, subventions from ICOM, grants, donations and underwriting from sponsors – which enable the organization to share each year its programs with its members from around the world.

CIMAM MEMBERS

CIMAM currently has 521 voting members from 78 different countries. We believe that the cultural and artistic dynamism of the underrepresented regions in the world should become an important actor in CIMAM’s development. One of our main concerns today is to increase individual and institutional members from the Arab world, Asia, Africa and Latin America.

CIMAM Members are museum professionals, they include the directors and curators of museums or institutions qualifying as Museums (in accordance with the definition in article 3, section 1 & 2 of ICOM’s statutes) as well as training and research institutions which are beneficial to museum activities. Individuals and institutions considered to be beneficial for the advancement of the modern and contemporary art museum community respecting the ICOM Code of Ethics for Museums and not involved in promoting or dealing with any commercial products and equipment required for museums and their services.

CIMAM MEMBERSHIP PROGRAM

The membership program of CIMAM is one of the most important elements of this Committee. Throughout the years it has grown and expanded to become the most relevant community of contemporary art museum professionals in the world. The membership program aims to provide a platform to share and discuss relevant issues on contemporary art, to keep in touch with peers and colleagues and to meet new ones through the online section designed for “Members Only” at CIMAM website as well as at the Annual Conference. Our members constitute the core element of this Committee, their active participation and contributions to CIMAM’s network and activities add value to the daily work and overall mission of CIMAM.

CIMAM’S PROFESSIONAL NETWORK OF MODERN AND CONTEMPORARY ART MUSEUMS AND COLLECTIONS
PROGRAMS AND ACTIVITIES

CIMAM Newsletter has over 2,000 subscribers as of January 2013. This program aims to inform CIMAM Members and CIMAM’s larger community about our programs and activities. For the contents we rely on our community of members who are invited to send us pertinent news about museum and collection professional matters as well as job opportunities and open calls.

CONTEMPORARY ART MUSEUMS WATCH

As for our advocacy program we have created a Contemporary Art Museums Watch. It is a series of newsletter publications initiated in January 2012, informing of the different critical situations of museums and collections in different countries and regions affected by world economical and political crisis. January newsletter was headed with a commissioned text about the Hungarian museum system titled On the Threshold of Chaos, by József Mélyi, chair of AICA Hungary. In February CIMAM published a commissioned version of a larger text by Pascal Gielen, associate professor in the sociology of art within the department of Arts, Culture and Media at the University of Groningen, on the particular situation of the cultural sector in the Netherlands. Also the text Not Museum Pieces, submitted by Tasneem Zakaria Mehta, Hon. Director of Dr. Bhau Daji Lad Mumbai City Museum, India. In June CIMAM published At War with Contemporary Art, a commissioned text by Yevgenia Belorusets, artist, writer and activist from Kiev, denouncing censorship practices in Ukraine. In July CIMAM supported the e-flux application for the rights to develop and administer the .art domain, with the hopes of maintaining and distributing such a domain in a way that emphasizes the quality, content, educational and ethical values of the art community. In December we published a letter signed by Andrea Giunta and members of the board of CIMAM, Natalia Majluf and Ivo Mesquita, to alert on the new course taken by the Museum of Latin America Art, Long Beach (MOLAA) when the chief curator position was eliminated.
In 2012 CIMAM sent 23 e-mail communications to CIMAM Network. You can view all the archived news at www.cimam.org

The number of subscribers to CIMAM Newsletter increased 31.6% from January 2012 to January 2013 and has increased 67.4% since January 2011.

Since 2012 CIMAM is also present on social networks such as Facebook with 290 direct users and a weekly reach of over 2,000 total users. On Twitter, CIMAM has over 100 followers after two months of activity in this social media. CIMAM’s Twitter account has been especially active during the CIMAM 2012 Annual Conference in Istanbul where delegates were able to react and comment ‘live’ on the program of conferences and visits.
FREE ENTRY TO MUSEUMS AND BIENNIALS

As part of CIMAM’s membership benefits, CIMAM offers a membership card that allows free admission to modern and contemporary art institutions worldwide. In 2012 over 100 modern and contemporary art museums have participated in the program.

With the aim to offer more and better services to our members CIMAM started in 2011 a new Admission Program for Biennials. Biennials have become important forums for the dissemination about current developments in international art, in this regard already 13 biennials worldwide have joined the program allowing free access to CIMAM Members during the biennial and preview days.

We are grateful to the institutions and biennials that, as a matter of professional courtesy, have agreed to join the program and offer free admission to card carrying CIMAM Members.

CIMAM ANNUAL CONFERENCE

CIMAM’s most important contribution to the field is made through its annual conference: an opportunity for communication, cooperation and information exchange, between museums, visual art professionals, artists and other institutions concerned with modern and contemporary art. Participants also have the privilege of attending private tours and visits to the foremost art museums, art centers, alternative art spaces and commercial galleries in the host city and its surroundings.

The conference, which takes place every year in a different country, focuses on a range of topics reflecting the needs of the members. Over the past years, it has addressed such central issues as Art in Divided Communities, Jerusalem 1999; Does Any One Need Museums of Contemporary Art Anymore? TRAVEL GRANT PROGRAM

The Travel Grant program is a very important aspect of CIMAM’s Annual Conference. It allows professionals from underrepresented economies and from smaller institutions to attend this important annual meeting.

Over the years CIMAM’s Travel Grantees have constituted a remarkable group of professionals who have later become important protagonists in today’s modern and contemporary art museums and collections. CIMAM’s grantees also become active members of this Committee. Since 2005 a total of 147 travel grant beneficiaries have been awarded support to attend CIMAM Annual Conferences.

In 2012 CIMAM offered 23 travel grants funded by The Getty Foundation, Los Angeles, 5 travel grants funded by the Fundación Cisneros / Colección Patricia Phelps de Cisneros and supported the attendance of 4 professionals from across the UK in collaboration with the British Council. The Travel Grant Committee of CIMAM constituted by 5 CIMAM Board Members reviewed over 100 applications in 2012.

CIMAM is planning to keep and increase the number of travel grants that CIMAM can offer to contemporary art professionals from around the world to benefit from attending CIMAM Annual Conferences. CIMAM 2013 Annual Conference will be held in Rio de Janeiro in August 2013 during the 2013 ICOM General Conference. Program and online registration dates will be announced within the coming months.

We are always working to improve the services offered to our members and one of the priorities for 2013 is to relaunch the CIMAM website. Having an efficient online platform today is the best way to increase visibility of all our programs and activities. We are looking forward to having a new section exclusively dedicated to CIMAM’s Travel Grant Program with extended information about its funders and beneficiaries.

THE GETTY FOUNDATION TRAVEL GRANT PROGRAM

Since 2005 The Getty Foundation has been contributing to CIMAM’s development by supporting the attendance of a total of 104 professionals from underrepresented countries around the globe to CIMAM Annual Conferences.

Number of CIMAM Travel Grant beneficiaries funded by The Getty Foundation.

In 2012 the total awarded amount by The Getty Foundation to CIMAM to carry out the Travel Grant Program was of 38,600 Euros. Valued at a maximum of 2,000 Euros per Travel Grant beneficiary, the funds have been used to cover travel, lodging and registration fees of 23 award recipients from 21 different low and middle income countries to attend CIMAM 2012 Annual Conference.
SELECTION CRITERIA

Travel grants have been evaluated and conferred by CIMAM’s Travel Grants Committee and The Getty Foundation based on their assessment of the professional’s genuine financial need and the potential benefit to the professional development and/or research of each candidate. The number of grant recipients and the funding level was contingent upon the availability of funds and the number of applications received. Those individuals eligible to apply had to be modern and/or contemporary art curators, directors and researchers working in emerging and developing economies* in need of financial help to attend. Priority was given to candidates with less than 10 years experience. Applicants having received CIMAM grants would not be considered for a new grant before 3 years.

CIMAM follows the list of emerging and developing economies according to the International Monetary Fund’s World Economic Outlook Report.

* Members resident in countries with emerging and developing economies according to the International Monetary Fund’s World Economic Outlook Report, September 2012, pay 40% of the regular fee. Full list of countries page 16.
As the global economic situation is in constant change, we would be glad to re-evaluate the grant criteria and priorities that The Getty Foundation wishes to apply during the candidates’ selection process in 2013. Wishing to learn from this year’s experience and from the candidates’ profiles evolution, we would be glad to define the list of countries considered low and middle income economies and the relationship between the nationality of the candidate and the country where their project is taking place.

APPLICATION PROCESS

The Application Process to the Travel Grants has been updated this year including digital application forms. Each candidate was asked to complete the application form document by attaching a CV, a short biography, a detailed budget and two letters of recommendation before July 1st 2012.

Applicants were notified of the decision by August 10, 2012. Travel grant fund expenditures have been exclusively related to and supported the purpose for which the fund was established. Support has been limited to conference registration, travel and lodging expenses for the awarded beneficiaries. All grant recipients were first approved by the grant contributor.

When accepting the grant, each successful candidate signed and returned the completed Terms and Conditions form. This document contained information on travel insurance, registration to the conference, travel and accommodation arrangements, visa requirements, instructions to submit a written report and details as new members of this Committee.

As part of CIMAM’s website relaunch program in 2013 we are preparing a new online application and follow-up process for the 2013 Travel Grant Program.

New Dynamics in Museums: Curator, Artwork, Public, Governance

Around 200 delegates are expected to attend CIMAM 2013 Annual Conference in Rio de Janeiro. Three keynote speakers and six case study presentations will be conforming the bases of a larger debate that will take place among the conference delegates. The active implication of members and delegates will be requested through extended Q&A and workshop sessions to reflect upon the issues arising from the conference topics.

CIMAM 2013 Annual Conference is organized in collaboration with MAM Rio - Museu de Arte Moderna do Rio de Janeiro.

A post-conference tour in the surroundings of Rio de Janeiro and to Brasilia will be organized for August 15 and 16. Conference program, speakers, visits and travel grant opportunities will be announced in March 2013.
New Dynamics in Museums: Curator, Artwork, Public, Governance

Rather than on the question of what museums represent, the focus of this year’s conference New Dynamics: Curator, Artwork, Public, Governance will be on who the agents of representation are. Having become too extensive to be represented in the museum context in its entirety, the world is now only presentable through the forces that shape it. And the same goes for the art world, which can be less grasped encyclopedically than ever before. Art was the first to express a critical attitude to the dominant forces shaping reality, most directly with institutional critique. After being dealt with by art, museum work embraced self-reflection. The museum seems to represent the world most accurately by reflecting the dynamics of its own work, which in turn reflects the dynamics of our socioeconomic reality in general.

One of the key issues addressed by this year’s CIMAM conference will be the new dynamics between the principal museum agents: curators, artworks, the public, and governance. The discussion proposition is that the new socioeconomic circumstances dictated by the global neoliberal capitalism have altered the curator–artwork–the public relation and stepped up the pressure in terms of museum governance. The new dynamic in these relations means, first of all, changed and less strictly defined roles of the individual agents. The new conditions produce new models of curatorial work altering the nature of art and the status of the public. Just as the political and economic world presents itself as progressively more democratic though in reality it is not, so does the museum. Some museums understand democracy as similar to a supermarket, offering its visitors the greatest possible variety of contents; others strive to adopt an attitude of awareness of the reality surrounding them. Such attitudes are based also on the reevaluation of the idea of the democratization of the museum, which in the context of the philosophy of the Enlightenment meant, above all, public access to the collections, but has now shifted in the direction of greater participation of the public sphere. Thus the democratic museum today should not only represent the world but also be open to its influences. By analogy, museums should not only include and accumulate art of various marginal groups and spaces, but enable them to participate and give them the right to self-interpretation.
More than ever before, the museum needs self-reflection. How does a museum work, on whose behalf does it interpret contents, whom does it address? How much professional autonomy does it preserve in this? In the globalized world, curators work in infrastructures of vastly varying stages of development and corresponding models of institutions. Museums are no longer the only institutions involved in working with cultural heritage and the way it relates to social and political circumstances; more and more local art centers that are not museums and international institutions such as biennials or art fairs are focusing on research programs. Alongside the new models of institutions new models of curatorial practices are evolving. No longer merely stewards of collections or organizers of exhibitions, curators are now also producers of the context and infrastructure, especially in the spaces without a developed institutional system.

Another thing impacting curatorial work today is the increasing governance of different museum boards, composed of people from the world of capital and politics. With the dwindling public funding private interests are gaining ground, and museums are now expected to please and draw the greatest numbers of visitors possible as well as forced to follow marketing demands. Due to the economic and political crisis even main national museums are closing in some parts of the world, their directors are being dismissed, and there is censorship.

The three key topics:

1. A new dynamic between curator and art work
Curators are now faced with a series of new and specific contexts in which they require the collaboration of diverse people in order to work out the meaning of a work, ensure a suitable presentation, and deal with complex copyright issues. will put this at the end Artists are no longer self-sufficient either; their role often overlaps with that of curator, scientist, and social agent. Artworks are not merely subjects of professional analysis but also play a performative role in the museum, i.e., they impact the way a museum works. Moreover, curators increasingly work with art from diverse geographical and sociopolitical contexts. Many works only come alive in interaction with the public. All of this generates new forms of curating, increasingly interdisciplinary and team-oriented. The discrepancy between all these heterogeneous aspects on the one hand and the global communications and networking technologies on the other makes all the more obvious the need for better coordinated professional methodology and translation tools.

2. A new dynamic between curator and public
Curators no longer see themselves only in the role of experts imparting knowledge but as agents opening up the museum to various external groups to co-shape it. Today, a museum must draw up programs that provide a framework for knowledge from below. Among the most burning questions today are: how should the museum act in the increasingly dynamic horizontal forms of knowledge production and how can it regain its vertical dignity?

3. A new dynamic between curator and museum governance
Professional curatorial work is under increasing pressure and must often give in to marketing demands or ideological control. To what extent does this endanger professional work and what are the ways and means of resisting dictates of this type? How to protect professional work and how to articulate scientific criteria that rule the activities of curators with the needs emanating from educational, marketing or economical demands?
CIMAM’s Annual Conference occupies the most important part of our budget and dedication. CIMAM covers all expenses related to content production such as speakers’ fees, accommodation and travel expenses. After each conference CIMAM undertakes the transcription and edition of the conference proceedings for its online publication. In relation to the 2012 Annual Conference budget, in 2013 we expect higher speakers costs due to the elevated hotel charges in Rio de Janeiro as well as an increase in the transportation required to transfer delegates from one venue to the other within Rio de Janeiro. CIMAM will seek to cover the rest of expenses with in kind or contributive collaborations and sponsors.

CIMAM NEW OFFICE SPACE

CIMAM´s office has been established in the Fabra i Coats industrial complex. It is a nineteenth-century spinning mill (thread and fabric factory) that was part of the old municipality of Sant Andreu del Palomar. The hall of the factory was built between 1910 and 1920, and has an exposed adobe structure, with universal column laminated pillars and beams, as well as two adjacent towers that contain the building’s communication nuclei.

Barcelona City Council acquired the factory complex from Fabra i Coats in December 2005 and in 2008 it was decided to turn it into an Art Factory.

The Fabra i Coats central hall has been restored to be a great receptacle of cultural production, characterized by a cross-disciplinary and multi-purpose nature. It combines different functions, users and disciplines that ensure an outstanding cultural and creative activity.

Feel free to come visit our new office space!

CIMAM’s office at Fabra i Coats is supported by the City Council of Barcelona.
